

Faculty votes down amendment about curriculum standards

BY BONNIE CORRICE
Staff Writer

An amendment to the Faculty Senate Constitution that would have allowed each college or school at Northwest to have responsibility for its major and/or minor was voted down at the last general faculty meeting.

Sixty-nine faculty members voted for the amendment and 85 opposed it. According to Dr. George English, vice-president of academic affairs, 101 votes were necessary for approval of the amendment.

The faculty originated the amendment. "It was the faculty's prerogative, as far as the constitution and asking for it to be voted on," English explained. "Either way we (the administration) could have worked with it. The faculty asked for it to be done."

Dr. Mark Jelayich, assistant professor of economics, said there seemed to be an impression the amendment originated and was pushed for by the School of Business and Government. "At one time we were under the erroneous assumption that in order to receive accreditation from the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools and Business, the school had to be autonomous in curriculum matters. We found we were in error about that," he said.

Dr. John Baker, assistant professor of business and government, was also in agreement with the measure. "It is typical fashion for a university set up like we are to administer its programs as outlined in the amendment, since the colleges and schools are supposed to be semi-autonomous units," Baker said. "The disagreement with the amendment seemed to be with the procedural matter, rather than the content itself. My feeling is if the content was good, then it should have been voted on for its merits."

Dr. Edward Farquhar, chairman of the Constitutional Review Committee, spoke in opposition to the amendment. According to the minutes from the meeting, Farquhar stated the committee was not consulted during the petitioning process and consideration of the amendment in the present manner was duplicative and a waste of time.

Manslaughter: Pankau sentenced to 15 years

Rodney Pankau, who was convicted of a manslaughter charge Feb. 24 in connection with the beating death of Wallace N. Morgan, was sentenced Tuesday to 15 years in the state penitentiary by Judge Montgomery Wilson.

Pankau now must serve a four year sentence for previous convictions of second degree armed robbery and a felony for stealing. He starts his 15 manslaughter sentence after he serves the first sentence, said David Baird, prosecuting attorney.

Baird filed three motions to revoke probation.

"We were pleased that the judge gave the maximum sentence for a manslaughter conviction," said Baird.

Pankau's defense attorney, Robert Duncan, asked for an appeal Tuesday. Baird said that Pankau and his attorney are entitled to appeal, but he hoped that the case was tried satisfactorily to stand on its own conviction. According to the Maryville Daily Forum Duncan said in regard to the sentence, "He's a young man and since he's been out on bail he's had no more trouble with the law. I think he's learned his lesson. Mr. Morgan's life cannot be brought back by locking him up."

Judge Wilson called Pankau the basic instigator of the beating death. He said when he sentenced Pankau he considered "the seriousness of the crime" and his prior convictions.

Pankau was taken into custody and is being held in the Gentry County Jail. Baird said he is to be transported to the state penitentiary today or tomorrow. Pankau had previously been out on $100,000 bond.

Michael Bears, who is charged with second degree murder in connection with the case, will be tried April 23. Thomas McClurg and Harry Justus, Jr. are also being held.

"I'm excited about the topic because I think it's the first time in a long time that we have a topic that's of interest to high school and college students," said Laura Widmer, coordinator of Northwest's Mass Communications Day to be held Friday, April 13. The topic of that program is "A Delicate Missouri. He is a past board member of the United Press International Wire Editors Association.

Prior to becoming a television journalist, he held reporter and editor positions with the Columbia Tribune, the Kirkville Daily Express, and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

He holds awards from the Missouri Broadcasters Association for best newscast, from the Missouri Radio Television News Directors Association for best news coverage, and United Press International for best Illinois news documentary.

Moore has also received Emmy Awards for his coverage of the Jonestown massacre for KPIX-TV in San Francisco, for his coverage of the assassinations of the mayor and city councilman of San Francisco, and for his coverage of Proposition 13, the tax revolt, in California.

He was anchor-reporter at KPIX-TV in San Francisco and WLS-TV in Chicago before returning to the Channel 9 news team this past summer.

Workshop session topics include "To Print or Not to Print," "Don't Shoot! Photography Law and Judgment," "A Funny Thing Happened On the Way to Court," "Sensitive Topics: Too Hot to Handle," and "Computers in your Journalism Lab."

There will be an awards presentation at 2:30 p.m. in the J.W. Jones Student Union for the 18 high schools who have entered the newspaper, yearbook and broadcasting contests.

KNWT televises Senate debate on April 16

BY DEB EATOCK
News Editor

Northwest students will have the chance to evaluate the three candidates for Student Senate president—Tim Beach, Mike Ehrhardt and Kevin Hummer—Monday. A videotaped debate between the three candidates was sponsored by the Inter-Residence Council and airs on Channel 8-KNWT at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m.

The candidates began by listing what they felt as some of the problems or changes they would like to work on next year.

Ehrhardt, currently vice president of Student Senate, said "Relations between Student Senate and Faculty Senate are relatively good, but it is important to work together for the benefit of the entire campus. We sometimes oppose each other's goals; we have to work together for students and faculty."

Another goal of Ehrhardt's is to continue to work on projects he began with this year's Senate President Roxanna Swaney. "I would like to make sure that her good ideas are continued," he said.

Beach, a sophomore senator on Student Senate, said his major priority is communication, especially between students, Student Senate and campus organizations. "My main priority is letting students know what is offered and getting students to stay on campus—changing Northwest from a suitcase college."

One way of accomplishing this, Beach said, would be to post a campus calendar in the Student Union that lists all the events occurring each month. Along with this, he would increase publicity for major events.

Getting more students and emeritus faculty involved in campus events and organizations were the two points that Hummer wants to work on. As member of Student Senate his freshman and sophomore years, he said the same people seemed to run for Student Senate offices every year and new ideas are needed.

One viewpoint the candidates seemed to share was the belief that the administration has been responsive to the students at Northwest.

Ehrhardt said, "The different vice presidents and organizations I've worked with have been very responsive to student needs. Some administrators feel their job is not necessarily student oriented but more administrative."

Beach said Northwest's administrators "have been sensitive to most students' needs. Some care a lot and some care but are misguided."

The candidates also voiced some disappointment over the voter turnout for student elections. Beach said, "The numbers have been improving but they could be better. Nearby schools have 20-50 percent voter turnout."

Last year was one of the biggest turnouts, said Ehrhardt, with eight to 10 percent considered a good percentage of voters for student elections. "With more candidates running we should have more students voting," he added. Hummer disagreed and said he thinks many organizations are unaware of student elections and never have a chance to vote. "I think eight to 10 percent is a terrible percentage," he added.

When asked if living off-campus could affect their responsiveness to other students, both Beach and Ehrhardt disagreed with the idea. Beach said, "I'm thinking of moving on-campus again but I try to spend a lot of time in the Union with people."

Ehrhardt said, "Granted I live off-campus, but most of my time is spent on campus. I'm involved with a lot of organizations."

Senate elections are slated; students to vote on April 17

BY DEB EATOCK
News Editor

While Northwest students may have had little choice in Student Senate representatives in the past, there are plenty of candidates to choose from this year. Fifty-three people are running for the executive offices of president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, along with the positions of class president, class senator and off-campus representative.

The election for 1984-85 Student Senate members is April 17. Students can vote from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. in the Student Union, from 4 p.m.-6 p.m. in Taylor Commons and must present a valid student I.D. to vote.

Outgoing Student Senate President Roxanna Swaney said, "I'm not really surprised at the large number of people running for office. There are three full tickets running and each ticket gets 18 people right off the top."

She added that "last year there were more independent candidates. A ticket usually runs better."

All posters during the campaign must be approved by Student Senate; signs on department bulletin boards should be approved by the proper department; and it is up to the directors of the different residence halls to decide if posters can be put up by the candidates.

On election day a faculty sponsor or an administrator will be at the polls during the voting to ensure all election and campaign rules are followed.

History Dept. /KXCV Brain Bowl

Students from 15 area high schools are currently participating in KXCV's Brain Bowl, a radio quiz program coordinated by KXCV and Northwest's department of history. Contests are broadcast at 6:30 by 90.5 FM.

Dr. George Gaylor, professor of history, is quizmaster for the contest, now in its 13th year. He asks questions spanning from European and American History, humanities, current events and general knowledge. Richard Gawthrop serves as judge for the 20 contests.

"Brain Bowl was designed to recognize students with academic excellence and to enhance the academic programs in schools," Sharon Shipley, KXCV program director and coordinator said. "We're excited when we see those goals manifested by inter-school academic conferences, the formation of history clubs and individual school competitions to determine the representatives to Brain Bowl. We're finding many teams meet before and after school for study sessions."

Finalists in the single elimination tournament will be awarded $3600 in scholarships to NWMSU.

Popular Culture Association

Martha Cooper, head of student academic support services, presented a paper on the role of black women in Nodaway county, 1840 to 1940, at the recent Popular Culture Association meeting in Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

Her presentation was in cooperation with the Missouri Western State College professors, Isobel Sparks and Jane Frick.

Spring beach party at Millikan

Millikan Hall and KDLX will be sponsoring the annual Spring Millikan Beach party today in the yard behind the hall. The party starts at 6:30 p.m. Contests will be held, including an Air Rock Contest. This contest will be limited to ten teams and can be registered for at the party. Prizes will be given to the winners.

For further information, contact Millikan Hall Council at ext. 1436. In case of rain, the party will be held in the main lounge.

Teacher Placement Day at NW

Ninety school districts from the states of Missouri, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska will participate in the annual Teacher Placement Day at Northwest, said Marvin Silliman, director of career planning and placement.

The event will be held, beginning at 9 a.m., on April 17, in the Ballroom of the J.W. Jones Student Union. Northwest seniors and alumni candidates investigating employment opportunities in education will be on hand to meet with the hiring officials of the participating school districts.

School districts will be assigned tables in the ballroom, and teacher candidates will have an opportunity to discuss employment possibilities with any of the school district representatives.

Teacher candidates are advised to have resumes available to share with the hiring officials. Upon entering the ballroom, teacher candidates will be handed an updated vacancy listing of positions available in the school districts participating in the Teacher Placement Day.

Tower to be unveiled at Blue Key's dance

The five finalists for the 1984 Tower Queen were picked Saturday by the members of Blue Key; the winner will be announced April 18 at the Tower Dance.

The dance begins at 8 p.m. with the unveiling of the 1984 Tower yearbook and features the local band Festival.

"It's a very upbeat, modern design book," said Laura Widmer, adviser. She said that the book has more graphics, magazine design and bigger pictures. "The biggest difference is the pictures are 10 times better," said Widmer. "My compliments go to the photography staff."

"The whole staff's attitude is reflected in the book. They wanted a book they could be proud of, one students could enjoy and be happy with," said Widmer. "They worked hard toward that goal and succeeded."

The yearbook company has nominated the Tower's cover as one of the top three covers of the year. Besides this award, Widmer is also optimistic that the Tower has a chance of becoming a national All-American yearbook.

Students can pick up their copy of the 1984 Tower April 19, 20, 23 and 24 from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. at the Information Booth, first floor of the Administration Building. Students are asked to bring their receipts.

Missouri's financial aid laws expanded

BY STACEY PORTERFIELD
Staff Writer

Missouri college students are required by law to make "satisfactory progress" in order to continue receiving financial aid. The new state law, passed Oct. 6, 1983, adds basically two new concepts to the previous law.

First, students who receive financial aid will be required to acquire their degrees within a specific time period.

Second, academic progress for these students will be evaluated on a semester basis. Northwest already follows this policy.

Satisfactory progress is defined as earning a minimum of 12 credit hours each semester for the Pell Grant and the campus based programs. However, according to Ellen Mothershead, associate director of financial aid at Northwest, students must earn 15 hours per semester or 30 hours for the academic year to fulfill requirements recommended by federally insured or guaranteed student loans.

"We have always been concerned with satisfactory progress here at Northwest," said Mothershead, who is also a member of the Missouri Committee for Academic Progress this year. She said she believes that evaluation of progress is a necessary part of providing funding.

When students are unable to meet their obligations because of medical problems or some other serious reason, the Financial Aid Committee can review the case and can allow the continuance of aid. Except for these few special cases, students are expected to fulfill the requirements or lose their financial aid.

"We provide the information, but the student has to assume the responsibility," Mothershead said.

The three basic types of aid that are offered by Northwest are Pell Grants, Guaranteed Student Loans/PLUS Loans and campus-based programs.

The Pell Grant, which is the largest federal student aid program, helps undergraduates pay for their continuing education and does not have to be paid back. Eligibility for the grant depends upon whether the student is of full-time or part-time status, how long he will be enrolled in the academic year, the cost of education and his Student Index number, which is based on his Student Aid Report. The 1984-85 applications for Pell Grants should be sent in as soon as possible and must be received by May 1, 1984 at the latest.

Guaranteed Student Loans are given at low interest rates and must be paid back. The interest rate for new borrowers is eight percent. An undergraduate can borrow up to $2,500 per year and a graduate student up to $5000 per year. The total GSL debt allowed for undergraduates is $12,500 and for graduate or professional study is $25,000, which includes any undergraduate level loans. In most cases, students are allowed five years to repay their loans after they leave school.

PLUS Loans provide additional funds for education at an interest rate of 12 percent.

Campus-based programs at Northwest include Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, Missouri Grants, National Direct Student Loans and College Work Study. These programs are administered by Northwest's Office of Student Financial Aids located on the second floor of the Administration Building. Part-time students are not eligible for campus-based funding at Northwest.

University's tentative aid budget announced

BY STACEY PORTERFIELD
Staff Writer

Northwest has received notification of the tentative 1984-85 funding levels for the National Direct Student Loan, the Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants and the federal share of the College Work Study programs for the University.

The NDSL funding for the level of expenditures has been estimated to be $354,320, the same as the 1983-84 figure. The NDSL funding for the Federal Capital Contribution has been estimated at $11,840. According to Ellen Mothershead, associate director of financial aids at Northwest, there have been federal proposals made to phase out the capital contribution for the 1985-86 program.

Mothershead stated that proposals have also been made to phase out the SEOG in 1985-86. However, the tentative 1984-85 figures for the SEOG, for both the initial year and the continuing year, show an increase over the 1983-84 figures.

The estimate for the initial year has been set at $20,450, an increase of $2,202 over last year's figure. Estimated funding for the continuing year is $24,194.

"I was very pleased with these figures," commented Mothershead.

The 1984-85 figure projected for the federal share of CWS is $285,550, the same as last year's figure. This 80 percent figure will be matched, in final allocations, by a 20 percent figure from state funds to make up the total funding for the CWS program.

These tentative funding levels were calculated from data contained in Northwest's 1982-83 Fiscal Operations Report/1984-85 Application and according to the procedures in the August 1982 regulations for the three programs.

According to Mothershead, "The final allocations should come in mid-May."

Many people expect Duncan Tuck to be a musical duo. Others have thought Duncan Tuck was an obscure Olympic dive. Dolphins perform 'On Broadway'

BY ANN WHITLOW
Staff Writer

Remember the old Esther Williams' movies and her graceful underwater ballets? The Sigma Phi Dolphins of Northwest Missouri State University have recaptured that beauty and grace in their 36th annual swim show.

The show was performed in the Robert P. Foster Aquatic Center on April 4-6. The theme of the show was "On Broadway." The water ballet, commonly known today as synchronized swimming, is performed by twenty-four students, including men and women. Members of the group come from all walks of life and majors.

According to three-year member and vice-president of the Sigma Phi Dolphins, Deb Slump, at the beginning of the fall semester bulletins are posted on campus. Those who are interested are invited to attend the weekly meetings/practices which are held Thursday evenings from 7-9 p.m.

For three weeks, basic stunts and strokes are taught. On the fourth week, tryouts are held. Those wishing to try out are asked to perform the various stunts and strokes they have learned in the previous weeks.

Slump said, "Practices are once a week. About one week before the show, practices are held nightly for three or four hours." During practice time, swimmers critique each other and improve their routines, adding the final touches.

"It takes a lot of physical strength to keep yourself above the water," said Slump. "It takes a lot of practice. You really work up your stomach, leg and arm muscles."

Ticket sales for the show and the dues from the Dolphin members make up the largest part of the funding for the Dolphins. The University also subsidizes some funding for the show.

All proceeds from the ticket sales of the show will go to a Sigma Phi Dolphin Scholarship and to Funding for next spring's show.

Letters to the Editor

Senate Committee: Where's the funds?

Dear Editor,

Linda Tate, the girl who according to a Nutshell article started the University of Missouri-St. Louis Chad Everett Fan Club to show how easy it is for any student group to obtain funds from student government, had obviously never been to Northwest Missouri State University. Yes folks, we can all feel safe in knowing that we're attending a school where the student government (if you want to call it that) rules with an iron fist (and tight purse strings).

That comment results from the events of the past few weeks regarding Public Relations Student Society of America's request for a grant of $500 from Student Senate Financial Affairs Committee. PRSSA is a recognized organization, but the school doesn't give us a budget to work with. The grant was to cover a $300 scholarship for a public relations major; $100 to start a fund raiser so we had something to leave in the budget for next year's members; $25 for gas for the three cars driving students to Pro-Am Day tours of public relations and related departments at four companies in Kansas City; and $75 for recruitment and printing promotional materials for developing the public relations department and our organization.

We filled out the proper request form and returned it to Senate's Financial Committee. The first Committee meeting, this issue was discussed at was not even attended by the Senate President Roxanna Swaney or the vice-president, Mike Erhardt. However, at that meeting we were told to first try other departments and organizations on campus, and businesses and banks in town to see if they would give us the money. If we could show we'd tried all those and been refused, then they would talk to us. Nothing like a little groveling to keep a person in his place, right?

Well, we groveled, were refused, and finally returned to the Committee with the same request. This time both the president and vice-president managed to attend. The $100 requested for a fund raising project was rejected because "Student Senate does not give money to make money...it never has."

Then we were asked to wait a few minutes while a few Senate members looked something up. They returned later to announce they'd discovered a rule stating that Senate would not give money to be used for scholarships unless they benefitted everyone. Baloney again, that same particular organization mentioned previously received their grant so they could present an event and the admission they charged was to be used to offer scholarships for majors within the related department. Another interesting point here is that we were told this rule was established in the spring of 1982. If so, why weren't we told of it before we even went groveling?

They continued to cut into the remaining $100 and the final blow came when the honorable Mr. Vice-President stated, "It is an honor and privilege to receive money from Senate. We're not obligated to give money to anybody."

I wonder if he ever gets a nosebleed up on that pedestal? What did they want us to do--put on knee pads and crawl?

This request and whole campaign was made in an attempt to get PRSSA back on its feet and to show that we are doing several worthwhile things, like providing tours for anyone interested, selling silk roses for Valentine's Day and sharing the profit with the American Heart Association, offering a scholarship and publicizing the Tower Dance. PRSSA is probably not the only organization who has suffered from the stinginess of a group of people who are supposed to represent the student body. We're probably also not the only ones who plan on doing everything in their power to make sure those same people don't get a chance to "represent," us again.

After winning the Mr. Northwest body building contest for two years in a row, Todd Murphy has shown how dedicated one can be to the fast growing sport of weightlifting. The title is one reward: the result of five years Murphy has spent lifting weights.

"I became interested in lifting weights through preparation for football," Murphy said. "It was mandatory when I came down (to Northwest)."

It wasn't long before Murphy became obsessed with lifting. However, Murphy said, the coaches didn't want him to lift too much, because he played quarterback and they thought it would hurt his throwing and flexing.

Without the football season to worry about, Murphy said he now spends three hours a day, six days a week lifting weights. Murphy said he lifts three days in a row and then takes one day off. On the first day, he said, he works on his chest, shoulders and triceps. On the second day he develops his back and biceps and on the third day Murphy builds up his legs.

"It (weightlifting) gives you the feeling of accomplishment and increases self-confidence. You use that self-confidence in other areas," Murphy said.

Murphy said that the most he has ever lifted was 400 lbs., but that he usually works out with 340 lbs. The first time he lifted he pumped 315 lbs. When he works out, Murphy uses the bench and the incline and does squats and curls, he said.

Murphy said he was happy to win the Mr. Northwest contest last year. He said this year, he used it as a practice for the Mr. Michigan contest.

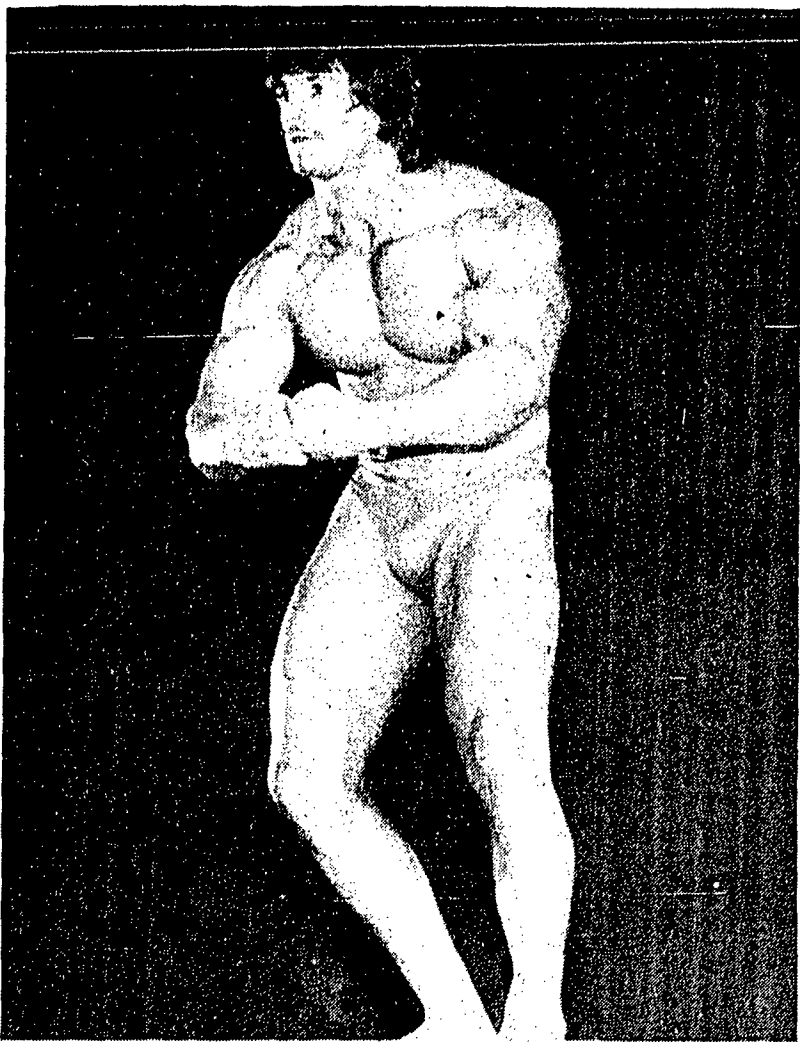

Hailing from Detroit, Michigan, Murphy entered the contest that was held on March 17. He didn't place, but plans on entering more local Detroit contests.

Having a 6-foot frame, Murphy said he usually weighs 227 lbs. For the body building contests, though, he said he diets down to 200 lbs.

"I go on a zero fat diet and eat only enough carbohydrates to get me through the workout. Then three days before the contest, I eat a lot of carbohydrates," Murphy said. He does this, he explained, because it makes the veins and muscles pop out because the carbohydrates don't have time to turn to fat.

Murphy added that he doesn't use steroids. He said that steroids are used to help retain muscle size that has a tendency to be lost.

Murphy, a political science major, will graduate this May. He hopes to become a professional bodybuilder and may change his program to go with that. He plans to become a graduate assistant and strength coach at Clemson University in South Carolina. Murphy has also been assistant football coach at Northwest.

Weightlifting: A nationally growing favorite workout

BY TERESA SCHUELKE
Activities Editor

In search of the body beautiful, more and more people are turning towards weightlifting. "Weightlifting is becoming more popular throughout the country," said Bob Green, assistant football coach. "More people are following the fitness boom."

Green is head of the strength program for the football players. Players not participating in winter sports are required to lift weights during the off season. He also teaches a weightlifting course.

Green said that his class is half men and half women. "I encourage females to lift weights. The coaches in the women's sports are having their players lift weights," said Green.

Green said in his class half of the time is used for circuit training with weights for an aerobic exercise and jumping rope and jogging for aerobic exercise to provide a total workout.

In search of the body beautiful, more people are turning to weightlifting.

Green said that some of the advantages of weightlifting include strengthening muscles, working on overall fitness and flexibility, rehabilitating an injured body part. Green said there are few disadvantages if the training is done properly. He warns that weightlifting should be used for strengthening muscles not for losing weight.

Green advises that if someone wants to start a weightlifting program, there are a few things he should think about. Decide if you want to work on overall fitness or concentrate on one particular body part. Start slowly and progress on the program. Get advice from someone who knows something about weightlifting. Have some idea on what you want to accomplish.

Green said that Horace Mann has a good weight training facility open to all students. If anyone is interested in a weightlifting program and would like advice, you can contact Green at the football office in Lamkin Gym.

Dorms, Greeks hold spring formals

BY SHELLEY CROWLEY
Staff Writer

The onset of spring not only represents blooming flowers and the presence of spring fever, but it is also the time of year when formals are held. The preparation for formals is long and complex, taking hours of planning and a considerable amount of money, including the cost to rent the facility and food, beverages and clothing costs.

Whether one is going to borrow a dress or buy one, it is expensive for the young lady. The gentleman must pay for his clothing, the tickets and any extra entertainment they may want.

The residence halls are having formals at various locations this year. Dietrich and Millikan have decided to combine this year and go to Brownville, Nebraska and ride on the Belle of Brownville.

Laura Blumenkemper said she thought things went pretty well when South Complex, Phillips Hall and Franken Hall combined for a formal which included dinner and dancing at the Holiday Inn South in Des Moines. The charge was $25 per couple and approximately 65 people went.

North Complex has scheduled their formal with Perrin

Hall, and plan to go to the Holiday Inn in Council Bluffs, Iowa. Tickets are on sale for $10 and the evening includes dinner and dancing.

The sororities and the fraternities have had and will have their formals very shortly, honoring members for various achievements and celebrating their beginnings.

The Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity is having their formal April 29 at the Ramada Inn in St. Joseph. "The evening includes giving awards for the past year and a lot of fun," Sigma Tau Gamma Todd Slagle remarked.

The Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity has estimated the cost for its formal between $45-$50. The evening festivities are planned at The Budget Inn and the Country Club in St. Joseph.

The Delta Zeta sorority held its formal at the Hilton in Kansas City. A buffet was provided and a disc-jockey played music from 8:30 to 12:30 p.m. The cost for this weekend ran from $50-$75.

Alpha Sigma Alpha is having its benefit at the Holiday Inn in Kansas City, April 14. "It is expensive, but it's a lot of fun," Sherri Harding, Alpha Sigma Alpha said. The price for the evening usually runs around $50 and is the highlight of the year for them, she said.

Major League Baseball: It's off to the races

BY TODD BEHREND
Staff Writer

For the major league baseball fan during the long cold winters. It's now April and millions of baseball fans are ready to greet the major league baseball season with open arms and eternal pennant hopes.

The American League Western division race can be summed up in four words, the Chicago White Sox. The White Sox won the West last year and will do so this year.

The Sox have one of the finest pitching staffs in baseball with Lamarr Hoyt, Floyd Bannister and newly acquired Tom Seaver anchoring the starting rotation.

Oakland improved its pitching staff over the winter by obtaining relief pitcher Bill Caudill from Seattle.

The California Angels are looking to rebound from last year's fifth place finish.

The Angels strengthened their bullpen by obtaining Kurt Kaufman, Frank LaCorte and Jim Slaton. The starting pitching is experienced with Tommy John and Ken Forsch returning.

The Texas Rangers are a tough team to predict. Last year they lead the Western division for the early part of the season and then faded.

The Rangers decided they needed a power hitter so they obtained Gary Ward from Minnesota for two quality pitchers. Texas also picked up weak armed Ned Yost from Milwaukee for his bat but obviously not for his defense.

The Kansas City Royals last season had a bad year on and off the playing field. Injuries and inconsistent pitching on the field and a drug scandal off the field caused Royal management to become ill over the winter.

If the pitching comes around and the Royals stay healthy, they could place third.

Minnesota will finish near the bottom of the division again this year.

The Twins lack quality pitching, offense and a sound defense.

Bright spots in the Minnesota lineup are Gary Gaetti, John Castino, Kent Hrbek and Ron Davis.

Seattle will find it tough to climb from the cellar of the western division. Manager Del Crandall will have his hands full trying to fix holes in the pitching, defense and offense.

The Mariners to watch this year are Gorman Thomas, Barry Bonnell and Jim Beattie.

The American League East will be featured next week

'Cats take two from Iowa Hawkeyes

BY TODD BEHREND
Staff Writer

Terry Marquardt's three-hit pitching and four first inning runs gave the 'Cats a 9-2 victory over Division I Iowa Hawkeyes in Iowa City April 7.

Northwest jumped on Hawkeye starter Jeff Kuepfer in the first inning, loading the bases on singles by Pete Barrett, Brian Jennings and a walk to Tony Henderson. Jaden Davidson then cleared the bases with a triple, giving Northwest an early 3-0 lead. Davidson scored moments later on a single by Paul England and Northwest had a commanding 4-0 lead.

Iowa scored one run in the bottom of the third and Northwest scored single runs in the fifth and seventh to round out the scoring.

Davidson and Jennings were the offensive stars for the Bearcats, Davidson was 2 for 4 with four RBIs and allowing Iowa two runs on six hits while striking out three and walking six.

Marquardt posted his second complete game and first win of the season, Jennings was 3 for 4 with one RBI and three runs scored.

'Cats 7, Hawkeyes 5

In the second game, the Bearcats scored three runs in the fifth inning and two in the sixth for a 7-5 win over Iowa.

Jaden Davidson was again the offensive star for the 'Cats as he went three for four with a single, double and his first homerun of the season and three RBIs.

Jerry Mikusa helped the Bearcat cause with a homerun, raising his season average to .346.

Todd Frohworth earned the victory with a fine relief performance by Wayne Snook. Frohworth ups his record to 2-2 for the season.

With the two victories over Iowa the 'Cats climb to 6-7 for the season.

McClure pitches second no-hitter of season

BY SHARI HARNEY
Staff Writer

Northwest's softball team finished second at the MIAA round robin tournament in Cape Girardeau April 7 and 8. The 'Kittens ran up a 5-1 record in the two day event with their only loss to Southeast Missouri State Sunday in the championship game.

On Saturday, the 'Kittens began tournament play with an 8-0 win over Central Missouri, putting the game away with six runs in the second inning. The 'Kittens managed only four hits in the game, but five CMSU errors contributed a great deal. Shelley Lewis got the win on a three-hitter and didn't walk a batter.

Northwest then went on to beat Lincoln, 12-0, in a game shortened to five innings by the ten-run rule. Northwest's freshman pitcher Shelly McClure pitched her second consecutive no-hitter in the game. She had ample offensive support from Kathy Schultz, who hit only the second grand slam homerun in Northwest history, and from Julie Gloor, who hit a three-run homer.

The 'Kittens completed a sweep of Saturday's action with a 6-1 win over the University of Missouri-St. Louis. Mary Kay Graney's RBI single in the first inning keyed a two-run outburst that put the 'Kittens ahead to stay. Two more Bearkitten runs scored on an error in the fifth and that turned out to be more than enough support for Lewis. She gave up just five hits and one run on a sixth inning solo homer.

On Sunday, the Bearkittens began with two more wins, beating the University of Missouri-Rolla 6-3 and Northeast Missouri 6-1, before losing to Southeast Missouri, 4-3, in what turned out to be the title game.

Northwest opened the Rolla game with a four-run first inning with Karen Hopewell's two-run single being the big hit. McClure got the win on a five-hitter, with the 'Kittens collecting 11 hits and taking advantage of five UMR errors.

Northwest took a 2-1 lead into the fifth inning of the Northeast game, but four Bulldog errors coupled with two Northwest singles accounted for a four-run inning that boosted the 'Kittens to the 6-1 win. Lewis allowed only four hits and the lone NEMO run scored in the first inning.

The 'Kittens concluded tournament play with a 4-3 loss to Southeast. Northwest scored first, getting two in the first on an error and an RBI single by Graney. But Southeast came back for four in the fourth, getting three on Mary Herring's bases-loaded triple.

The Bearkittens struck for a single run in the sixth on Gloor's RBI single, but couldn't get the go-ahead run in the sixth or the seventh inning after putting runners at first and second with two out. McClure took the loss, giving up only four hits.

Lewis broke her 76 consecutive innings without a walk record. The record extends from 17 innings in the 1983 season through 59 innings this season.
